Health care workers are voters. We know that you serve your patients through medical care and voting for candidates who value the unique health needs of all community members.

Given the important role you play in our community, we are asking all staff to take this time to double-check their voter registration. There are many reasons why a voter registration may need to be updated, such as moving to a new house or a recent name change. Please take this moment to verify that your information is correct.

The first step in Voting For The Health Of It is to make sure your registration is up-to-date. October 11 is the last day to do this! If you need to register to vote, you can register at this link. Thank you for continuing to put the health of our community first.

There's a lot at stake this election. Candidates who are elected on November 8 will directly influence the future of health care, including women's health access, mental health services, the cost of care and prescription drugs, and so much more.

We know that those on the ballot this year have distinct differences on important healthcare topics. It is our job as voters to educate ourselves on these differences and confidently cast our vote for those who align with our personal views.

We are doing our part by providing the resources needed for our staff to be informed voters. We encourage you to learn more about the candidates so you can Vote For the Health Of It!

It's time to Vote for the Health Of It!

A stronger, healthier community requires elected leaders who prioritize health care workers, patients, and their families. Voting For The Health Of It is, after all, about community health.

We are asking our staff to take this moment to make a plan to vote. Whether it's from home with an early ballot, or at a voting center on November 8, be sure to know what your plan is and then make it happen!

To find an Election Day voting center near you, visit our county recorder's website. Early ballots need to be mailed by November 1. Thank you for putting the health of our community first!
